Basketball Concept

The main concept for these basketball designs is to combine the overlaid design style with modern lines based off of a basketball.

With chunky style sneakers being popular now, I can see how the trend will start to shift to a lower profile outsole. This will make the designs look faster than styles with bigger outsoles.

We can also hide some of the technology of the design under the upper. We can also add branding logos to let consumers what kind of technology is inside shoe.

Outsole with visible midsole

The outsole for this design can use a combination of rubber, A-SHOCK and TPU to have a very modern and fast design.

Outsole with new upper design

Basketball Concept

This second design is based on more modern design styles. It is a combination of embossed leather and ballistic mesh. This makes the design look like body armor for your feet, but the design can be light enough for easy movement.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION:

The objective of this project was to make a mall level sneaker that would appeal to the general public across different markets in Asia, The Americas and Europe. These style would sit between the 515, 373, and 420 in each of these markets. The colors in each collection ranged from core basics (Black/Navy/Gray) to more advanced color combos as shown below.

OUTSOLE DESIGN

The outsole is from my prior collection of projects, MZ/WZ501 which is also being used on a wider range of styles as it is considered a push by New Balance standards.

■ Sketch+Tape Up

■ Pullover

■ Updated 3D Printed Heel Clip

■ GROUP SHOT: Once I got all of the confirmation round samples, I decided to take a group shot of one set of the colorways. There are 19 colors in total across men's and women's style. These projects were also taken down into kid's sizing.
